

Travel Thoughts

□ Las Vegas

I landed on Tues morning with absolutely no plan of where I was going to stay and what I was going to do, however I've learned how to make the most with what I've been given.

As a creative entrepreneur, I find traveling is the best way to explore the realm outside of my comfort zone. You never know who you'll run into, what experiences you'll have and how they may leave an imprint on you.

It's also pretty cool to think about how a year ago I was in Barcelona going on morning runs to the marina and enjoying the town I had spend 2 months living in.

Now, I sense more clarity in the direction that I'm working toward.
